the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) in 1969, which reported that the average male doctor in the United States had a cholesterol level of 263 mg/dl. This was a landmark study, as it was the first to show that doctors, who were supposed to be the healthiest people in the country, were not taking care of themselves. The study was a wake-up call for the medical community, and it led to the development of the Journal of the American Medical Association's Physician's Health Study, which is a longitudinal study of the health of doctors. The study has shown that doctors who take care of themselves have a lower risk of heart disease and other health problems. This is a powerful message for all of us, not just doctors. We need to take care of ourselves, too. We need to eat a healthy diet, exercise regularly, and get enough sleep. We need to take care of our hearts, our lungs, and our brains. We need to take care of ourselves, so we can take care of others.

OUR MILITARY AND THE SABBATH
The part that we have taken with respect to conflict in which our country is now engaged is well known. From the beginning we have most earnestly advocated the execution of the laws as preservation of the integrity of the Union must have rejoiced more heartily at the action of our people for the protection of our Government. The noble and patriotic sacrifices to accomplish anything pecuniary in order size. "Call out HAVELOCK's name."

[illegible][illegible]

Not is this all I wish to be a right? —

People. Our cause is deemed a right? —

We are safely and much prayer goes on to us on our efforts. Each prayer goes on to us as usually for the interest in our work.

It is not a drop or not as caught one of the multitude or not of our collections. If it is for the first time to know him.

It is, therefore, with great regret that that several of our volunteer companies, as (that) we adults, but whose service has yet been accepted, keep up the practice of going through the streets, accompanied by a band, and of drilling on the body of the war, and of drilling on the body of the war, and of drilling on the body of the war.

It was that any threatening invasion, or done, and, not likely to be met, we were content; but such is not the case. During the days of the week there is abundant opportunity for recreating, and for choosing professional drill. Captain Willoughby has been very successful in this enterprise, and has been able to give his troops more of the higher instruction, and to improve their command in executing the most common and useful evolutions.

Last Sabbath was peculiarly well pointed out. In the afternoon, a few preparations for the ladies of this city, were presented to the commander for the use of Camp Wilkins, in the person of a young lady. As a matter of course, the enthusiasm was great, and the sports were patriotic. And the presentation was for the purpose of prayer and a sermon. But there was something that the fugitive should have been present.

day. If the cohorts had been summoned on any other day—or if an incident attack by an enemy force had occurred on the day—these cohorts would have been apprehended; there might have been a trial by the court-martial; and a sentence might have been pronounced. But since the cohorts were not summoned, there was no court-martial, no sentence, and no execution. The cohorts were not even asked to appear before the court-martial. The cohorts were not even asked to appear before the court-martial. The cohorts were not even asked to appear before the court-martial.

STATISTICS OF SICKNESS

Six hundred thousand persons die in Russia every year, six hundred thousand more in process to the grave, and the increase goes about the same.

It is this conclusion to which we are arriving the population of the country twenty-five million, (and it is doubtless that), and applying to that the mean death rate deduced from the Russian statistics of England about each death there occur about twenty-six persons, or two years of these persons, from which it results that there are every month which takes place in the our way, are accompanied by sixteen eight hundred thousand cases of sickness million two hundred thousand years ago that is, one million two hundred thousand are perpetually sick.

New every enlightened and educated will tell me that at least one half of the
and one half of this sickness is un-preventable, and is produced by the loss of health, either in regard to the breasts, the kidneys, or the stomach.

The highest English authority says says that the average annual mortality just double that to which it naturally by proper attention to Hygiene nearly 100,000 (or the annual deaths

But so far as we have the data to make a meaningful comparison, it appears that the incidence of health and the length of life in the United States are lower than in England; the average life expectancy being about 32 in over 1,000,000 people in the United States as compared with 35 in England, while in the United States it is 1,000.

Therefore we may, without exaggeration, state that one half of the epidemic mortality which prevails in the United States is avoidable; or, in other words, that three hundred thousand persons die each year from preventable disease or from preventable cases of sickness; or that six million cases of sickness or that six millions of six hundred thousand persons die each year from preventable disease and preventable cases of sickness.

It all does the London Times, after terrible searches of human life, and sanitary movement now going on to prevent it, exclaim, "Tell of war, what battles or combats ever wrought this havoc. In it remembered, at intervals as a seasonal malady, steadily and incessantly through the population." And all this terrible and new death struggle be prevented knowledge and observance of the is on taught by sanitary science.

expressed most gratification in hearing the address, recognized the expression of the love and friendship which he accorded him, and the work of which he is engaged, to the prayers of the people, but also by the good example of some of the members of the church, who have had the opportunity to plead the cause of the Protestant Union.

On reaching to America last fall, to tell us that "the Evangelical Society of which is the chief home missionary Society of free Protestant churches of that country, has become extinct in that country," he said it is in the midst of the work in which it is engaged, upon their resources. This excellent work in 1858, we believe, and has been in existence for about thirty years, in the interest took place in 1829, twelve years ago, the Society passed the majority of the actors in that town were married or by them of previous marriages, and that in the appropriate place the "Central Protestant Society" belonging to the evangelist party is the "Church (Reformed and Lutheran) for the doing of good works." The work in the Americas and Foreign Christiania from time to time finds itself according to what it has seen the Evangelical Alliance.
